

First clinker shipment arrives at Port of Ngqura for Osho Cement

Written by Global Cement staff
21 September 2018

Print

South Africa: A ship carrying clinker and gypsum has arrived at the Port of Ngqura. The raw material is intended for Osho Cement, a company setting up a grinding plant at Coega special economic zone, according to the Herald newspaper. The imported clinker and gypsum was transported by truck to the new plant.

The joint venture between South Africa's Osho ventures and Germany's Heidelberg Cement plans to market cement from its new unit to South Africa, Sub-Saharan Africa and islands in the Indian Ocean. The plant is scheduled to open the new plant in late 2018.

Last modified on 26 September 2018

Published in Global Cement News

Tagged under South Africa grinding plant Import Shipping HeidelbergCement Osho Cement Osho Ventures Port Clinker Gypsum GCW372